The 2026 ceremony was dominated by two very different films. Paul Thomas Anderson's revolutionary saga One Battle After Another and Chloé Zhao's poignant Shakespearean drama Hamnet led the pack, proving that both high-energy blockbusters and intimate literary adaptations have a home in Hollywood's "biggest party."

One Battle After Another swept four major categories, including Best Director and Best Screenplay for Anderson. Meanwhile, Hamnet pulled off a stunning upset for Best Motion Picture – Drama, with Jessie Buckley taking home the trophy for Best Actress.

Historic Wins and Records

The 2026 ceremony wasn't just about the trophies; it was about breaking barriers. Wagner Moura made history as the first Brazilian actor to win Best Actor in a Drama for his haunting role in The Secret Agent.

Over in the Musical/Comedy category, Timothée Chalamet became the youngest actor ever to win Best Actor for Marty Supreme, surpassing legends like Leonardo DiCaprio. His speech, which included a sweet nod to partner Kylie Jenner, was arguably the most-watched clip of the night.

Golden Globes 2026: The Full Winners List (Television & Podcasts)

The small screen was just as competitive this year. Netflix's Adolescence and HBO Max's The Pitt shared the spotlight, while the Globes introduced a brand-new category for Podcasting.

- Best TV Series – Drama: The Pitt (HBO Max)
- Best TV Series – Musical or Comedy: The Studio (Apple TV+)
- Best Limited Series or Anthology: Adolescence (Netflix)
- Best Actor in a TV Drama: Noah Wyle, The Pitt
- Best Actress in a TV Drama: Rhea Seehorn, Pluribus
- Best Actor in a TV Musical/Comedy: Seth Rogen, The Studio
- Best Actress in a TV Musical/Comedy: Jean Smart, Hacks
- Best Podcast: Good Hang with Amy Poehler

Expert Analysis: Why These Wins Matter

As a long-time observer of the awards circuit, I noticed a clear trend this year: the "Global Takeover." The win for KPop Demon Hunters in the Animated and Original Song categories signals that the Globes are looking far beyond Hollywood's borders to define excellence.

Pro Tip for Movie Buffs: If you haven't seen Sentimental Value yet, Stellan Skarsgård's Supporting Actor win should be your sign to watch it. It's a masterclass in subtlety that often gets overlooked in favor of louder performances.
